this multidisciplinary handbook pulls together in one volume the research on children's and young adult literature which is currently scattered across three intersecting disciplines: education, English, and library and information science.

this volume is the first of a series contributing to the academic study of language arts as an English language teaching paradigm. Language arts has been widely used in native English speaking countries including Australia and New Zealand. Its recent adoption into the second language teaching curriculum in Hong Kong as well as similar initiatives within secondary and tertiary education in mainland China enhances its interest to scholars studying second language teaching and learning in Asian contexts. This book offers many papers and discussions of interest to teachers, language professionals, scholars, and administrators. Its chapters explore current topics in language arts research including trends in the rapprochement of stylistics and linguistics, teaching approaches, and learning outcomes. At the same time, they offer diverse theoretical and methodological approaches of interest to the practitioner and policy maker as well as the researcher. The value of this volume lies particularly in strengthening the theoretical and methodological foundations of language arts. The use of literature and the arts in humanist education has a long history within Europe, being traditionally appreciated for its ability to transform leaders, instill finer sensibilities, and question social ills. In its postcolonial incarnations, as the traditional subject areas were informed by critical and linguistic theories, language arts subject areas were less often used as they were understood to offer opportunities to analyse their functions as apology for leaders coopting the young and pacifying dissent, but less often used to teach second language skills. Language arts curricula arising since the 1980s have increasingly embraced authentic voices, styles, and genres. Contemporary language arts curricula use literature to teach reading-based and communication skills in conjunction with critical and creative thinking. The movement of English language education beyond native English shores has placed language arts into a world Englishes frame, and therefore its curricula have included the teaching of ethics, civics, and intercultural sensitivity. The explosion of media and digital communications of the 1990s led to the adoption of media literacy as a crucial language arts skill as digital innovations continue to impact the teaching of english language arts has adopted multiliteracies these developments are represented in the papers included in this volume
